Meet Melisa

Born In 1982, a native to Lorain, Ohio, Melisa grew up living with her grandparents Frances and James Lasure. She attended Clearview High School as well as Lorain County J.V.S. While in J.V.S she attended the Culinary Arts program, graduating in 2001.

Back in her 20's she had everything figured out.

She had a career path and the schooling to proceed with her choice. But life has a funny way of changing even the best made plan. So at 28 after a medical emergency she was left, "with do nothing and live off of the system" or "learn what she could still achieve on her own." She has never been a quitter or one to back down from a challenge. True, she may back off and regroup, but she will not give up. Holding on to this core value, she discovered her passion for writing. With her drive to see her words come to life, she is right there at the tip where things are starting to get exciting.

2016 saw the birth of her first written work "The New Reign" but what will the future hold? Let's find out together.

Adding some modeling, Social media influencing, and other outlets for her work... What she does and where life leads her, is still an open road.

Public Speaker

"Entrepreneurs are not born to be leaders: they are forged from the fires they have walked through. Entrepreneurs rise to the challenge of bettering lives by answering the call for a higher purpose. If you want more out of your life, more out of your book, out of your company or out of whatever venture you are creating, setting a positive mindset with a positive community is your first step to succeeding. Keep in mind failure is not an option."

At Wild Dreams Publishing I wear many hats. Some have titles and others don't. But it;s ok, because although a title is great to have on a door, Only one matters. But what that one is ... is up to the one seeking out a special title in hope of finding the person they most need to speak to.
